DECK 01 / THE BRAND STRATEGY

The art of being off duty.

INDEPENDENT BRAND CONCEPT · OCTOBER 2026

THE STRATEGIC TEST

Three things Resort Sport must earn.

01

Differentiation

A point of view no established leather-goods label already owns.

02

Desirability

Product and a world people want before they need either.

03

Credibility

Proof that an unknown brand's materials and build are worth the price.

MARKET CONTEXT

Market scale is not proof of opportunity.

2025 PERSONAL LUXURY GOODS MARKET

2–4%

BAIN 2026 BASE-CASE GROWTH FORECAST

SIGNAL

Experience-led luxury interest is relevant context, not category demand evidence.

INTERPRETATION

An accessory may express an experience-oriented way of living, but this does not establish bag demand, switching or price acceptance.

Source: Bain & Company / Altagamma luxury market update, June 25, 2026.

Luxury goods can communicate excellence through heritage and restraint. Not every shopper wants those codes to define their personal style.

Expressive leisure brands demonstrate the power of a cultural worldview. The question: can that worldview create preference for a distinctive, premium leather accessory?

THE OPPORTUNITY

Pair the substance of premium leather goods with the expressive freedom of leisure culture.

Different benchmarks. Distinct competitive jobs.

DESIGN & CRAFT

Loewe: sculptural, recognizable leather silhouettes. The Row: restrained material expression. Peserico: refined Italian material sensibility.

PRICE ANCHOR

Longchamp full-leather collections: a direct price and product reference, not its nylon lines.

CULTURAL BENCHMARKS

Sporty & Rich: lifestyle identity. Vacation Inc.: an ownable editorial world. Neither replaces a leather handbag.

DIRECT LEATHER-GOODS COMPETITORS / THE BUYER'S REAL ALTERNATIVES

Polène

Sculptural, signature leather forms

PRODUCT DISTINCTIVENESS

Mansur Gavriel

Material-led, understated luxury

TACTILE VALUE AND RESTRAINT

Cuyana

Everyday versatility and practical utility

FUNCTIONAL VALUE

DeMellier

Recognizable metalwork and polished build

HARDWARE SIGNATURE AND FINISH

STAUD

Playful silhouettes and expressive appeal

RECOGNIZABLE PERSONALITY

BY FAR

Retro-inflected styling and relevance

NOSTALGIA AND DESIRABILITY

IMPLICATION

Resort Sport must combine distinctive design, credible material value, and a compelling leisure identity—not compete on any one attribute alone.

EXISTING POLES

The whitespace is in the combination, not the components.

Luxury houses

Heritage, prestige and recognizable design.

Leisure labels

Cultural expression, often led by apparel or beauty.

Premium leather

Competing alternatives on design, function and price.

STRENGTH	WHO DELIVERS IT TODAY	RESORT SPORT UNITES IT AS
Product design	Polène, DeMellier	Recognizable geometry + architectural hardware
Material value	Mansur Gavriel, Cuyana	Supple leather and finish standards at an accessible-premium target
Personality	STAUD, BY FAR	Optimistic resort culture, not conventional fashion nostalgia
Portfolio coherence	Across the competitors	A coherent design language across everyday, resort, and travel occasions—not breadth for its own sake.

STRATEGIC INTERPRETATION

From signal to product.

SIGNAL

Experiences carry meaning

Luxury demand increasingly reflects a search for personal value beyond visible prestige.

→

HYPOTHESIS

Objects can carry that meaning

A distinctive accessory may express a way of living, not merely function as a status symbol.

→

PRODUCT RESPONSE

Distinctive geometry. Practical utility. Quiet branding.

Sculptural bags with intended everyday utility and a recognizable off-duty point of view.

KEY TEST

Does this promise create preference over a known leather-goods label at a comparable price?

THE CUSTOMER TENSION

"I want the substance of luxury without having to perform the seriousness of luxury."

DESIRES	Design authorship and tactile quality.
RESISTS	Generic silhouettes or conspicuous status codes.
NEEDS TO BELIEVE	The design is worth choosing over a trusted brand—and the quality will live up to the promise.

TARGET BUYER

Who we build for.

PRIMARY BUYER

Design-conscious leather-goods shoppers considering premium and luxury brands, willing to trade familiar labels for distinctive design when quality and utility are credible.

TRIGGERS

Style refresh, travel, everyday replacement.

BARRIERS

Unknown materials, durability, fit and price-value.

JOBS TO BE DONE

Functional

Carry essentials across daily and leisure use.

Emotional

Feel prepared and spontaneous.

Social

Express individual taste without logos.

Switching

Better design must outweigh familiar-brand trust.

THE SWITCHING ARGUMENT

What earns a switch from a trusted label.

CUSTOMER WANTS	Distinctive leather design, tactile quality and versatility across workaday and off-duty settings.
CURRENT TRADE-OFF	Established options may deliver trusted quality, prestige or utility, but not combined with this design and leisure identity.
WHY CONSIDER RESORT SPORT	Strong silhouette signatures, intentionally useful forms and a consistent, expressive brand world.
WHY HESITATE	Unfamiliar brand; uncertain leather quality, practical comfort, durability, servicing and value.
WHAT EARNS THE SWITCH	Physical product proof, transparent specs, fit demonstrations, credible policies and direct value comparison.

POSITIONING STATEMENT

FOR

Design-conscious consumers seeking luxury design with more freedom and personality,

RESORT SPORT LTD. IS

An accessible-premium leather accessories brand inspired by the art of being off duty.

COMPETITIVE DISTINCTION

Unlike brands primarily differentiated by prestige, minimalist restraint, or utility, Resort Sport combines recognizable sculptural design, practical versatility, and a distinctive leisure-led worldview.

One idea, three strategic pillars.

01

Design worth recognizing

Signature geometry and thoughtful detailing that earn attention without overt logos.

PORTOFINO HANDLE, RIVIERA SCOOP, REGATTA SWEEP.

02

Considered for real life

Function, construction and category-appropriate materials that justify use beyond the photograph.

FIT, WEIGHT, FINISH AND WEAR TO VALIDATE.

03

A life off the clock

Optimistic leisure storytelling and a culturally rich editorial identity: a heritage of leisure, not of aristocracy.

The art of being off duty.

CUSTOMER PROMISE

Distinctive, considered accessories that bring the freedom and optimism of leisure into everyday life.

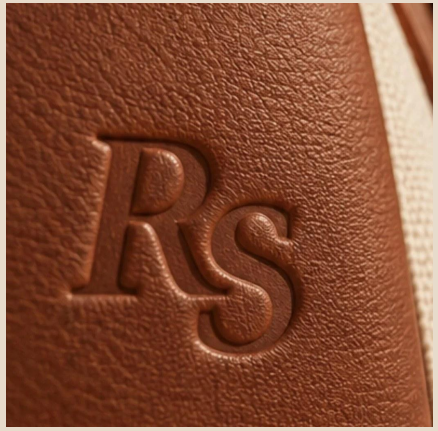

TAGLINE

Official equipment for time off.

CREATIVE PROVOCATION

Luxury doesn't have to be serious to be considered.

Strategy becomes product design.

No oversized logos

Let silhouettes, hardware and materials build recognition.

Signature handle on Portofino

A focal design code, not a repeating ornament.

Permanent colorways

A consistent palette builds recognition beyond individual collections.

Riviera wide scoop

An ownable carryall shape for resort leisure.

Regatta zip + laptop fit

Sculptural design that works in daily use.

POSITIONING MATTERS ONLY WHEN IT CONSTRAINS DECISIONS

What we will, and will not, compete on.

WE WILL COMPETE ON

- Recognizable sculptural design
- Material and finish credibility
- Thoughtful daily and leisure versatility
- A distinctive editorial worldview
- A disciplined, coherent assortment

WE WILL NOT CHASE

- Oversized status logos
- The lowest ticket price
- Feature volume for its own sake
- Short-lived seasonal trend dependence
- Unlimited SKUs at launch

Two advantages, both still to be proven.

PRODUCT

Distinctive geometry offers a visible reason to notice and evaluate the products. Memorability, preference and price justification must be tested.

BRAND

A repeatable leisure-led worldview connects product, copy, campaign and commerce. Its incremental impact on recall, preference and conversion remains to be validated.

DESIGN DECISIONS

What we rejected, and why.

REJECTED

CHOSEN

A lower, aerodynamic Monaco creates stronger distinction while keeping travel utility.

CHOSEN

The extra-wide, scooped Riviera is more distinctive and recognizable.

CHOSEN

Regatta trades flap and drawstring cues for zip access and a laptop compartment.

CHOSEN

A small blind-debossed RS keeps the focus on the silhouettes.

Three decisions that determine success.

01

DESIRABILITY

Do the designs create preference?

Compare Portofino and Riviera against established sculptural bags. If preference is weak, refine product geometry before expanding the range.

02

VALUE

Will the target buyer trust the proposition?

Test material perception, price expectations and credibility signals. If price resistance dominates, reconsider specification or assortment, not just messaging.

03

DELIVERY

Can the intended product promise be built?

Validate supplier costs, hardware, abrasion resistance and carry comfort. If quality at target prices is infeasible, prioritize fewer hero silhouettes.

DECISION RULE

Advance only when customer preference, perceived value, and product feasibility support the proposed positioning.

The strategy makes choices.

POSITIONING

Design-led leisure accessories, not logo-led status goods.

CUSTOMER

Buyers seeking distinctive design, tactile quality and versatile carry.

PORTFOLIO

Five complementary silhouettes; hero signatures over assortment breadth.

PRICE ROLE

Accessible-premium, anchored to full-leather competitors, not discount luxury.

EXPRESSION

An optimistic resort editorial world with quiet product branding.

GROWTH

Permanent, recognizable products first; limited color issues later.

THE STRATEGIC OUTCOME

A different expression of luxury.

Resort Sport Ltd. brings the discipline of luxury design to the freedom of leisure. A deliberate position. Five complementary silhouettes. A cohesive creative and product language.

Luxury doesn't have to be serious to be considered.
